Inside this little book is a story of an 18-year-old dream of wanting to live on a narrow boat. The idea came from a holiday with my then husband. We had enjoyed a lovely holiday on a small cruiser on the Caledonian Canal in Scotland. We both wanted to try living on a boat for years after that holiday, but because of the lack of finances we were not able to do it. Four years later we parted anyway. But I carried on wanting to have a go for years. In 2010 I was fortunate enough to be able to sell my mobile home and realise the dream. This is the story of that realisation and, at 54 years old, was about to embark on a new adventure.

Chuck's Living Object Tingle's:

Chuck Tingle is a world-renowned master of the 'tingler'; a story so sensual, so erotic, and so powerfully gay that it will change the whole way you look at erotic romance literature. Collected here are three such tales of the living object variety. Are you ready to depart on a depraved journey of gay lust that will tingle you to your very core? If so, than this explicit collection is for you. BRANGELINA SPLITS APART AND THEN POUNDS THEIR OWN BUTT Celebrity couple Bran Bitt and Angelo Jolo are as high profile as they come, plastered across the world under the tabloid banner of Brangelina, a singular entity made of two distinct stars. When Bran and Angelo wake up literally fused together at the hip, they quickly begin to realize that Brangelina might be more than just a media driven moniker. Eventually, their bodies mesh completely, transforming them into a strange and powerful creature of fame. Now a decade later, Brangelina has finally decided to separate once again, throwing the media into a frenzy and setting in motion a hardcore gay encounter with a physically merged celebrity identity and itself. POUNDED IN THE BUTT BY MY CONSTANTLY CHANGING THOUGHTS ON THE ONGOING MYSTERY OF CHUCK TINGLE'S REAL IDENTITY Frank and his best friend Archer run a podcast about the mysteries of the last uncharted frontier, a place where strange and unusual things still run wild and nothing is as it seems: the internet. Their latest podcast episode is about the enigmatic erotica author, Dr. Chuck Tingle, but without a satisfactory ending to reveal the writer's true identity, it seems that all is lost. Fortunately, Archer notices that the location of one of Chuck's social media posts shows him in Home of Truth, Utah. Now Frank must travel alone to this ghost town on the edge of society, following a row of telephone lines that buzz a little louder than usual and a strange voice that could belong to something more powerful than just a prolific erotic author. And, of course, it wouldn't be a Tingle without a hardcore encounter between Frank and a manifestation of his constantly changing thoughts on the ongoing mystery of Chuck Tingle's real identity. SLAMMED IN THE BUTT BY THE HANDSOME SENTIENT MANIFESTATION OF ELECTION DAY Rinron Breet is a political junkie, and after years of waiting he's finally ready to vote in his first presidential election. Unfortunately, with all of the various political parties to choose from, he's not quite sure how to cast his ballot. Fortunately, help arrives in the physically manifested form of Election Day itself, a handsome sentient segment of time who is ready to help Rinron with his decision. It quickly becomes apparent, however, that for Rinron to choose his political party he's going to need to stop thinking with his brain and heart, and start thinking with his butt.

Nadi amsha is the subtlest division of a rashi (sign) suggested by Sage Satyacharya similar to the Vargas (divisions) given by Sage Parasara. It is generally the 150th part of rashi, amounting to 12' of arc or 48 seconds in time if 2 hours duration is taken for rashi. In the Chararashis (moveable) it is counted clockwise from the beginning of rashi, in the Sthira rashis (fixed) anti clockwise from the end of rashi and in the Dwiswabhava rashis (dual/common) from the middle of rashi. Different names are given for each nadi amsha such as Vasudha, Vaishnavi etc the last nadi amsha being called Parameshwari. Thus the first nadi amsha of Vasudha in chara rashi will be the 150th in the sthira rasi and 76th in the Dwiswabhava rasi. The names chosen also seem to indicate some good or bad nature of the particular amsha similar to the names given in Shatshtyamsha. Each nadi amsha is again divided into two parts called Poorvabhaga (first part) and Uttarabhaga (second part), amounting to total of 300 parts, each part consisting of 6' in arc or 24 seconds in time. Some nadi astrologers divide the nadi amasha into 4 parts, amounting to a total of 600 parts, called Kalas each Kala consisting of 3' in arc or 12 seconds in time, to distinguish the role and duty of an individual as Brahmin, Kshatriya, Vysya or Sudra in the broad fields of religious / philosophical guidance, ruling, trading, or service respectively.

In this deeply considered meditation on aging in Western culture, Jan Baars argues that, in today's world, living longer does not necessarily mean living better. He contends that there has been an overall loss of respect for aging, to the point that understanding and "dealing with" aging people has become a process focused on the decline of potential and the advance of disease rather than on the accumulation of wisdom and the creation of new skills. To make his case, Baars compares and contrasts the works of such modern-era thinkers as Foucault, Heidegger, and Husserl with the thought of Plato, Aristotle, Sophocles, Cicero, and other Ancient and Stoic philosophers. He shows how people in the classical period "less able to control health hazards" had a far better sense of the provisional nature of living, which led to a philosophical and religious emphasis on cultivating the art of living and the idea of wisdom. This is not to say that modern society's assessments of aging are insignificant, but they do need to balance an emphasis on the measuring of age with the concept of "living in time." Gerontologists, philosophers, and students will find Baars' discussion to be a powerful, perceptive conversation starter.

How can we live the Christian Life? But the righteous shall live by faith "'Faith as a grain of mustard seed.' Have you seen a mustard seed? If I had a handful of mustard seed in the palm of my hand, it could not be seen very well from a short distance away. But if I took one grain of mustard seed and put it in the palm of my hand, it would be very difficult to see it unless you were close to me and had good sight. Our Lord said that is all you need to remove a mountain" p. 40. Also, as hymn writer Ira D. Sankey pens: "Even when my faith is small, Trusting Jesus- that is all." Our mustard seed sized faith can be placed in our infinite God, who ultimately is the One doing the mountain moving.
