In this book, author Tina Schwartz discusses many matters that are not often presented in guides to writing and publishing, such as the importance of mentors and critique groups, as well as courses and extracurricular activities that can be of great help to the up-and-coming teen author. The book explores various writing careers and the basics of publishing and marketing, including how to write query letters. Schwartz also provides tips on writing both fiction and nonfiction, as well as genres a new author can explore, like poetry and songwriting.

A collection of Native American poetry.

Hello Hello

Combines photography with lyrical text celebrating the animal world, in a compilation that includes works by such poets as Emily Dickinson, Robert Frost and Rudyard Kipling.

Terrific Topics: Lower primary book 1

A new picture book from Brendan Wenzel, the New York Times bestselling and Caldecott Honor-winning author of They All Saw a Cat! Hello, Hello! Beginning with two cats, one black and one white, a chain of animals appears before the reader, linked together by at least one common trait. From simple colors and shapes to more complex and abstract associations, each unexpected encounter celebrates the magnificent diversity of our world—and ultimately paints a story of connection. Brendan Wenzel's joyous, rhythmic text and exuberant art encourage readers to delight in nature's infinite differences and to look for—and marvel at—its gorgeous similarities. It all starts with a simple "Hello." The book includes:

- An afterword from author Brendan Wenzel about the importance of conservation and protecting the wildlife on our planet.
- A glossary of the animals featured in the book and a notation on their status (Near Threatened, Vulnerable, Endangered, or Critically Endangered).

Orangutanka

The Minuses beckons attention to ecological and feminist issues, amplifying the endangerments predicating women's lives and the natural world, laying bare the struggle and faith necessary to endure with integrity and spirit intact.

Natalie Diaz's highly anticipated follow-up to When My Brother Was an Aztec, winner of an American Book Award Postcolonial Love Poem is an anthem of desire against erasure. Natalie Diaz's brilliant second collection demands that every body carried in its pages—bodies of language, land, rivers, suffering brothers, enemies, and lovers—be touched and held as beloveds. Through these poems, the wounds inflicted by America onto an indigenous people are allowed to bloom pleasure and tenderness: "Let me call my anxiety, desire, then. / Let me call it, a garden." In this new lyrical landscape, the bodies of indigenous, Latinx, black, and brown women are simultaneously the body politic and the body ecstatic. In claiming this autonomy of desire, language is pushed to its dark edges, the astonishing dunefields and forests where pleasure and love are both grief and joy, violence and sensuality. Diaz defies the conditions from which she writes, a nation whose creation predicated the diminishment and ultimate erasure of bodies like hers and the people she loves: “I am doing my best to not become a museum / of myself. I am doing my best to breathe in and out. // I am begging: Let me be lonely but not invisible.” Postcolonial Love Poem unravels notions of American goodness and creates something more powerful than hope—in it, a future is built, future being a matrix of the choices we make now, and in these poems, Diaz chooses love.

Pastoral Madness

Read Along or Enhanced eBook: Based on a true story, WAITING FOR ICE follows an orphaned polar bear cub as she struggles to find food on Wrangel Island, far north in the Arctic Ocean. Left alone at ten months old, the young female finds herself up against other bears who are bigger and stronger than she is—and just as hungry. Due to rising temperatures, the bears are trapped on the island until the ice packs reform. Only then can they venture out to hunt for seals and whales, using the ice as life rafts.

STEAM Projects Workbook

This book contains poems about animals from Asia, Australia, and Oceania, which are extinct, rare, endangered, or threatened. The text includes sections on mammals; amphibians, reptiles, and sea creatures; birds and butterflies. The book concludes with a special section of exquisite poems on honeyeaters and honeycreepers from several Hawaiian islands. Just as the poems are suited to various reading levels, so also the artwork reflects artists of varying ages and abilities, from an eleven-year-old amateur to a retired professional. Through a variety of styles, the author engages the mind, emotions, and will of the reader, enabling him/her to see the world through the eyes of an Indian Python, Japanese Crane, Indian Rhino, Horseshoe Crab, or Long-Beaked Echidna, plus many more of your favorite creatures. As you read these aloud, consider what you can do to save the life of one species before it is gone forever.

The gorgeous illustrations inspire the beauty and awe of sea life. Your little learner will be thrilled to discover new facts and words. When it comes to choosing the right book for your young child it's a jungle out there. That's why Do You Know Me? Poems About the Sea delivers marine science content that's brain boosting and fun. This is a perfect book for children who love to play guessing games. The rhyming poems about sea animals are smart and interactive. Now they're not just reading, they are playing to solve the riddle which takes learning to new level. Parents and teachers will love reading them aloud. Children meet the sea animals as they go on adventures and experience the joy of poetry. The collection of poems features dolphins, ghost crabs, hammerhead sharks, shrimp, and barnacles. Our book was created with young children in mind to inspire their imagination. The poems take on big issues like endangered species and conservation. It's easy for little learners to become budding marine scientists and sea life lovers. Here's a few lines from one of the poems. Do You Know Me? I'm a gigantic gray ominous guy I'm never your foe My ancestors all lived twenty million years ago I can weigh twelve hundred pounds like six men together I swim in schools all day in any kind of weather Guess Who I Am? Playful poetry, imaginative illustrations and science come together in a guessing game to make learning about sea life a delightful experience for children. Do You Know Me? Poems About the Sea highlights sixteen different animals that will entice a child's curiosity about the greater world around them. The rhyming poems are riddles for a child to guess the animal the poem is describing. Each poem has an illustration, facts, and new words. A glossary accompanies the poems. The book invites children's creativity. Your child will treasure the confidence of knowledge. We can imagine lots of young and inquisitive little ones asking many questions as a result of these poems. Susan Law, retired educator says, "Do You Know Me? Poems About the Sea is a poetry book for children that is engaging and informative, as well as entertaining." Science and art come together to make sea life come alive for children. The poems were written by The Twinkys. We are a group of five women writers whose goal is to share our love of the ocean and its creatures with children in a joyful way. Our writing group wanted to write a sea life poetry book for children who love to play guessing games. Glenn Shuck, Atlantic Beach photographer says, "Several very talented ladies came together to create this wonderful book that will work on the coffee table, as well as gifts for your family." Each author brings her own special voice and expertise to each delightful poem. Lucy Cortese, Jeannie Fredrick, Tish Hubbard, Kathy Triebwasser, and Mary Zirakparvar are our authors. Tish Hubbard our illustrator has created amazing illustrations that sets off this book as a work of art.

Animal Poems of the Iguazú

Why do poets write about animals? What can poetry do for animals and what can animals do for poetry? In some cases, poetry inscribes meaning on animals, turning them into symbols or caricatures and bringing them into the confines of human culture. It also reveals and revels in the complexity of animals: poetry, through its great variety and its inherently experimental nature, has embraced the multifaceted nature of animals to cross, blur, and reimagine the boundaries between human and animal. In Poetry and Animals, Onno Oerlemans explores a broad range of English-language poetry about animals from the Middle Ages to the contemporary world, revealing how poetry can contribute to our understanding of animals and our relations with them. He presents a taxonomy of the kinds of animal poems, breaking down the categories and binary oppositions at the root of human thinking about animals. The book considers several different types of poetry: allegorical poems; poems about “the animal” broadly conceived; poems about species of animal; poems about individual animals or the animal as individual; and poems about hybrids and hybridity. Through careful readings of dozens of poems that reveal generous and often sympathetic approaches to recognizing and valuing animals’ difference and similarity, Oerlemans demonstrates how the forms and modes of poetry can sensitize us to the moral standing of animals and give us new ways to think through the problems of the human-animal divide.

standards?" "When can I possibly fit it into my already over-packed day?" Have you ever asked these questions about poetry? The 30 Painless Classroom Poems series makes it easy for you, the elementary school teacher, media specialist, or reading specialist, to share poetry with your students. Whether you already love poetry or you fear or even actively dislike it, these books are for you. The poems, Notes from the Poet, extension activities written by experienced classroom teachers, and tips for using poetry in your classroom will have you sharing poems in no time. In A Need to Feed, award-winning poet Laura Purdie Salas (author of BookSpeak!, Water Can Be, and more) shares 30 poems in which predators stalk, pounce, trick, lure, and attack their prey. These rhyming poems, mostly from the predators' point of view, show how animals' bodies and hunting styles are adapted to their ecosystem and their prey. The final word in each poem is the prey animal, so you can also use these as riddle poems, letting students employ close reading and additional research to find clues and figure out the prey animal. Extension activities by Karen Ganon share ideas for springboarding from these poems into deeper learning across many content areas. Sample: Great Horned Owl: Cravings Stink
In midnight's black velvet I silently glide
My golden moon eyes Expose each place you hide
I tear with my beak My claws neatly slice- Well, that's enough detail. (This story's not nice!) Last year, all my friends said the Poet: Owls are so gorgeous and mysterious, and I really wanted to start the poem by focusing on that. I thought it would be a nice contrast to the slicing and dicing that comes later. In lines 1 and 3, I used phrases like "black velvet" and "golden moon" to make you picture a beautiful night. See all of the 30 Painless Classroom Poems at www.30PainlessClassroomPoems.com. This astonishing, self-assured debut leads us on an exploration to the stars and back, begging us to reconsider our boundaries of self, time, space, and knowledge. The speaker writes, “the universe/is an arrow/without end/and it asks only one question;/How dare you?” Zig-zagging through the realms of nature, science, and religion, one finds St. Francis sighing in the corner of a studio apartment, tides that are caused by millions of oysters “gasping in unison,” an ark filled with women in its stables, and prayers that reach God fastest by balloon. There’s pathos: “When my new lover tells me I’m correct to love him, I/realize the sound isn’t metal at all. It’s not the coins rattling/ on concrete, but the fingers scraping to pick them up.” And humor, too: “even the sun’s been sighing Not you again/when it sees me.” After reading this far-reaching, inventive collection, we too are startled, space struck, our pockets gloriously “filled with space dust.”
